

CONTENTS

THE HISPANIC PRESENCE IN AZTLÁN/USA By Lee Daniel	1
CONCEPCION: THE FORGOTTEN BATTLE OF THE TEXAS REVOLUTION By Stephen L. Hardin	10
THE ORIGINS AND DETERMINANTS OF INDOCHINESE SECONDARY IN-MIGRATION TO S.W. KANSAS By Michael J. Broadway	22

CONTRIBUTORS

Lee A. Daniel is Assistant Professor of Spanish at Texas Christian University. He teaches Spanish American literature and Hispanic culture. His areas of research interest are in the theatre of Sor Juana Inés de la Cruz, the Spanish American short story and the Hispanic presence and influence in the United States. He has published articles in the Latin American Theatre Review, Hispania, and Spanish Today.

Stephen L. Hardin is a doctoral candidate at Texas Christian University whose major research interest is military history, especially Texas military history. Mr. Hardin and James W. Pohl co-authored, "The Military History of the Texas Revolution: An Overview," in the January 1986, Southwestern Historical Quarterly.

Professor Michael Broadway is Assistant Professor of Geography at Wichita State University. He received his Ph.D. in Geography from the University of Illinois in 1983. Since 1984, Dr. Broadway has been involved in a series of projects related to the Southeast Asian refugee community in Garden City, Kansas.