CONTRIBUTORS

Sally Torpy is a senior at the University of Nebraska at Omaha and will enter graduate school in the fall of 1994. She presented a modified version of this article at the 1993 Missouri Valley Conference, and received the Frederick Adrian Award for Excellence in Historical Research.

Michael Marchand is currently a graduate assistant in the School of Library & Information Management and the Center for Great Plains Studies at Emporia State University. He is still working on James Mooney's heraldry.

James F. Hoy is a professor of English at Emporia State University. He is past president of the Kansas Folklore Society and teaches a course on the folklife of the Flint Hills.

Sam S. Kepfield received his B.A. in history from Kansas State University, a juris doctor and his M.A. in history from the University of Nebraska. His major areas of interest are water law and irrigation development on the Great Plains and the relief efforts for pioneers in the grasshopper plagues of the 1870s and the droughts of the 1890s. He plans to attend the University of Oklahoma for his Ph.D.

Larry Schwarm, assistant professor of art at Emporia State University, teaches courses in photography. Scenes of the Flint Hills are a special interest.
